University's/organizations commitment to cost-share a Fulbright grant for 2024-2025

The Fulbright Finland Foundation provides grants to Finnish citizens to pursue studies, research, and professional development projects in the United States.

Some of the grants provided by the Fulbright Finland Foundation are funded together with Finnish higher education institutions or organizations. These are called cost-share grants. These co-funded grants provide higher education institutions or organizations with diverse opportunities to advance the international mobility of their students, researchers, and staff.

Applicants from Finnish higher education institutions must attach this document completed by their home unit to their MCPD grant application.

MCPD applicants working in higher education institutions must define their home unit’s view on cost-sharing the ASLA-Fulbright Mid-Career Professional Development grant. Since there is a limited amount of MCPD grant funding available, cost-sharing with the applicant’s home institution/organization can play an important role. However, the ability to cost-share is not a requirement for applying for the grant. For candidates who are not from higher education institutions, including the cost-share form is optional.

Billing the home unit’s share of the costs
The home unit’s/institution’s share of the costs will be billed in Euros according to the currency rate of the billing day. The invoice will be sent in the beginning of the Fulbright grantee’s grant period. For example, if the grant period starts in September, the Fulbright Finland Foundation will send the invoice to the higher education institution during August or September.

Why higher education institutions should participate in cost-sharing grants with the Fulbright Finland Foundation:

- The students, researchers, and staff of higher education institutions have more funding available and therefore more grant opportunities for international mobility.
- A Fulbright grant to the U.S. provides the grantee with notable advantages both before and during the grant period (e.g. pre-departure orientation, advising services, free visa, and wider Fulbright network).
- The home university’s name and their participation in the Cost-share will be announced along with the grantees, providing visibility and promotion of the home university.
- Some of the Fulbright Finland Foundation’s grant programs cannot be applied to if the home university does not participate in cost-share grants.
