The Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching Program for International Teachers is a four-and-a-half-month non-degree, non-credit, intensive professional development program at a U.S. university. It will provide approximately 22 educators with a unique opportunity to complete individual or group projects, take courses for professional development at a host university, observe, collaborate, and share their expertise with U.S. colleagues in public, private, secular, and religious schools. The Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching Program for International Teachers will commence in August 2027 and conclude in December 2027. The curriculum includes academic coursework, leadership training, and instructional technology seminars. Through the program teachers build collaborative, lasting connections with teachers and students. Each participant also completes an educator project independently, or as part of a group to develop educational materials, workshops, or other resources to meet an educational need in their home community. Cultural enrichment, and support will be provided throughout the program.

After returning home, educators who successfully complete the program will be eligible to compete for small grants for essential teaching materials, follow-on training for other educators, collaborative projects with participating U.S. schools, and other activities that build on the exchange experience.
